

The VILLAGER NEWSPAPER

Key Testimonials:

"The Villager newspaper is very important to our local economy. I make buying decisions nearly every day based on information I find there. I also believe that there is no better resource to know what is going on in every aspect of our local community. The social scene, business news, community activity, art, culture, education, and recognition of local people making things happen — all in one place."

- Mark Crowley, New Media Business Development Director, Salem Communications

"The Villager Newspaper gives the South Metro Denver community a sense of self. The Sweeney family has created a legacy for the area which serves it well. Their reporting encompasses the entire continuum of life in the south metro area and helps sustain the high quality of life we enjoy here."

-John Brackney, President & CEO,
South Metro Denver Chamber of Commerce

Only a newspaper like The Villager is close enough to its readers to provide detailed coverage of issues and events in their own neighborhoods. That's invaluable to me as an elected lawmaker. Reading each issue, from front to back, helps me stay plugged into my constituents."

- Nancy Spence
Colorado State Senator, Senate District 27
